

Jamie Shear

Research & Development Associate

Jamie Shear joined the Jim Joseph Foundation in January 2021 as a Research & Development Associate. In this role, Jamie works closely with the Chief R&D Officer, supporting the Foundation's R&D strategy to experiment and explore within Jewish education and expression and to evolve for the future of Jewish life.

Before joining the Foundation, Jamie worked as a Marketing and Special Projects professional at an education technology start-up in New Orleans through the Venture for America entrepreneurship fellowship.

Jamie is a graduate of the A.B. Freeman School of Business at Tulane University, where she studied Marketing, Legal Studies, and Social Innovation. She has a passion for creative problem solving, loves the beach, and spends much of her free time exploring New Orleans.