

DB Soiu

Director of Information Technology

DB started his career in technology 28 years ago, starting his own business in the S.F. Bay area. After consulting with Interland, a real estate company founded by Jim Joseph, he brought his experience and skills to a full-time permanent position 25 years ago.

After 10 years with Interland, the formation of the Shimon Ben Joseph Foundation began due to the passing of the single entity owner, Jim Joseph.

DB continued to work side by side with both Interland and established the infrastructure that has now become the Jim Joseph Foundation. He continues to keep up with current technologies, both in research and implementation responsible for every aspect of technology needs as the Director of IT.

His focus is now wholly directed toward the Jim Joseph Foundation as Interland closed its operations.

The vast amount of time spent with one company has provided him with a large scope of understanding the current needs and development of structure conducive to a non-profit Organization, and the challenge of maintaining current industry standards.

He has brought industry standard Virtualization, O365, SharePoint, and many other technologies that have enhanced operations for the continued benefit of the Foundation.

His many years working reflect his passion and love for technology that continues to add to the success of the Jim Joseph Foundation.
