

Matt Goldberg

Matt Goldberg is CEO and President of Tripadvisor, Inc., the world's largest travel guidance platform. With over 20 years' leadership experience across a diversity of sectors, including travel, media, e-commerce, and digital, Matt has helped drive innovation and expansion of the businesses he's served.

Before joining Tripadvisor, Matt served as Executive Vice President of Global Operations at The Trade Desk, a global advertising technology company based in New York City. Prior to that, he was the Global Head of Mergers, Acquisitions, and Strategic Alliances at News Corp., where he also led the online publishing, digital real estate, and data businesses in India.

Matt has also served as Senior Vice President and Head of Corporate Development at Liberty Interactive/QVC Group (now the Qurate Retail Group), with a focus on content and commerce across TV, digital, video, and emerging markets. He has also held several executive operating roles, including CEO at Lonely Planet and Senior Vice President for Digital Strategy and Operations at Wall Street Digital Network.

Matt began his career in public service and has spent decades supporting and advising numerous community and not-profit organizations. At The Trade Desk, he was a founding director of Dataphilanthropy, a foundation dedicated to the mission that passionate, yet data-driven, rational philanthropy is the most effective way to deploy capital against humanity's toughest problems. He currently serves on the boards of the Burning Man Project in San Francisco, California, and the Lumina Foundation in Indianapolis, Indiana, an organization that works in partnership with education and business leaders, civil rights organizations, policymakers, and individuals who want to reimagine how and where learning occurs.

Matt also serves as the Chairman of the Board for Lingoda GmbH in Berlin, Germany, and as a board member of Blue Ocean Acquisition Corporation in Chevy Chase, Maryland. He is also a founding partner and advisor to Anthropocene Ventures in San Francisco, California.

Matt holds a bachelor's degree in English from Cornell University, a master's in international relations from the University of Melbourne in Australia, and an MBA from Stanford University's Graduate School of Business.

Matt's favorite place to travel is Australia, where he also lived for 6 years with his wife, Liz, and their three children, Aidan, Jesse, and Olivia.